

Executive Development Consulting and Training Offerings

GLISI's Executive Development offerings adapt the best of business and educational models for organizational improvement to help your district and schools improve performance and communication. The Executive Development program offers training and consulting support to districts looking to improve senior leader and organizational performance through more effective strategies in Team-based Improvement, Talent Management, and Balanced Performance Improvement.

The ideal audience for the GLISI Executive Development program workshops, trainings, and consulting services are senior leaders committed to working together to improve organizational performance. These senior leaders should invite any other district or school leaders also committed to improving their organization's performance.

To get started with the Executive Development program or to learn more information about the program, contact Scott Cowart, Senior Performance Consultant at scott.cowart@glisi.org or 678-292-8777. Also, visit our website at www.glisi.org to read more about Executive Development and GLISI.

In a time of increased accountability, but also increased rewards, Senior Leaders are responsible for setting and communicating clear performance expectations as well as clear methods and strategies for measuring, monitoring, managing, and communicating performance.

GLISI works with Senior Leaders to drive performance in their organization--building leader capacity, creating sustainable initiatives, and ultimately improving student achievement.

I was given the ability to focus on measures that provide a comprehensive view of the district's performance rather than the narrow AYP-driven one.
